

New York City on brink of default

Market plunges, bond trade ceases as city fails to meet debts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices on the stock market plunged and trading in municipal bonds from cities and states ground to a halt today as New York City teetered on the brink of defaulting on $453 million in debts.

The stock value of New York banks, which hold billions in city debt, tumbled. But the Federal Reserve said it was standing by to give them assistance.

The state asked the Fed to extend banking hours to 4 p.m. EDT to give the city an extra hour to rush money to the banks, if a last-minute infusion of cash becomes available to the city.

In Washington, President Ford called economic advisers to the White House to consider the New York financial situation, but a spokesman said the President was still firmly against federal aid for the city.

New York's financial crisis rippled through the open market on the tax-exempt bonds of other cities and states. There was virtually no trading activity, and those issues that were being bought and sold were down in price.

"There simply aren't enough bids around to carry out any transactions," said one bond dealer.

Even quality bonds, including tax anticipation notes from the State of Pennsylvania, fell in price.

There was heavy trading on shares in New York banks. First National City Bank, the city's largest, fell $1.12 a share to $29.37.

Investors in the banks were worried that if the city defaults, the value of the banks' bond holdings will be sharply reduced, thus cutting heavily into bank assets.

Paul A. Volcker, president of the New York Federal Reserve, said the Fed is "keeping in close touch with the New York situation." The Fed has said it would step in with emergency funds if default threatens the solvency of the banks.

Individual bondholders could not count on such assistance. Dozens of individuals arrived at the New York comptroller's office to redeem notes falling due today. The number of persons appearing for payment was described as routine.

They were given receipts and told to come back later in the day for their checks.

Economists said default by the city also could weaken the U.S. dollar abroad.

Mayor Abraham Beame was maintaining an open telephone line to the White House, a Beame aide said.

The mayor met with Albert Shanker, president of the teachers' union, for 90 minutes to try to get him to urge trustees of the union's pension fund to reverse their decision not to bail out the city from default.

"The mayor told me the seriousness of the situation," Shanker said. "I listened to him." Asked if he would tell the pension trustees to go ahead with $150 million in bond purchases, Shanker replied, "You'll have to ask them. I am not going to advise them to."

A spokesman for Gov. Hugh Carey said the city would technically be in default at 3 p.m. EDT when banks close for the day.

City Council President Paul O'Dwyer said "only a miracle will save us—and I don't expect that miracle."

Harrises say not guilty to all charges

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William and Emily Harris pleaded "not guilty" in firm tones today to charges of kidnaping, assault and robbery after the trial judge rejected a defense call that he disqualify himself from hearing the case.

In an acid exchange with defense attorney Leonard Weinglass, Superior Court Judge Homer H. Bell said that there was "not a shadow of a doubt in my mind" that he could preside over the trial in an impartial manner without prejudice against the two SLA companions of Patricia Hearst.

The Harrises both stood as deputy district attorney Samuel Mayerson asked them how they wished to plea to the charges stemming out of a shooting at a sporting goods store in Los Angeles along with Miss Hearst and their subsequent alleged abduction of two men to commandeer their automobiles.

The Harrises spoke only the words "not guilty" and said nothing more.

Weinglass, who was the defense attorney at both the Ellsberg and Chicago 7 trials, raised the question of Bell's impartiality and asked that the judge disqualify himself.

Ford firm in denying N.Y. aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will take no action to help New York City avert financial default and believes the city has the means to solve its own problem, his chief spokesman said today.

"I can say flatly that the President will not take action to prevent a New York City default," White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters at a noontime briefing.

Ford's position was announced by Press Secretary Nessen after a series of top level White House meetings that the President ordered after being advised that New York officials feared a default by the city was inevitable by the end of the day.

Although Nessen declined to specify any particular steps that the White House thought New York might take, he repeatedly said "the President believes New York City and New York State have the means today to avert default."

Nessen said Ford's opposition to federal aid for New York was not based on any "philosophical or moral" reasons, but instead on his belief that he had "no statutory authority" to provide assistance.

"Even if he did, he would not (do it) because he doesn't believe a short-term infusion of a few million dollars" would solve the long-term problem, Nessen added.

"This is not a natural disaster or an act of God. It is a self-inflicted act by the people who have been running New York City," said Nessen when reporters noted that the federal government had come to aid of stricken local areas in the past.

Nessen said Ford had no plans now to meet with New York Mayor Abraham Beame, who is expected to testify on Capitol Hill Saturday, and the press secretary declined to say whether the administration had drafted any contingency plans to help the city later if a default occurred.

But Nessen said the President felt "sympathy" for the people of New York "whose leaders should have done a better job" in handling the city's financial affairs during previous years.

Nessen said Ford asked his economic advisers to meet this morning and throughout the day "to keep up with the rapidly changing, fluid and unclear situation." He said the advisers, to his knowledge, had not recommended any last minute action or that Ford change his position.

Ford called Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and other top money advisers to the White House for morning meetings but did not personally attend. Spokesmen said he was being kept abreast of the New York situation.

Simon met for 20 minutes at the White House with Ford economic adviser L. William Seidman, Budget Director James T. Lynn and Chairman Alan Greenspan of the President's Council of Economic Advisers. They comprise the executive committee of Ford's Economic Policy Board.

Simon and Lynn also met for 30 minutes in the Executive Office Building with members of an administration group which has been keeping eyes on the New York crisis for months. Among those present were Assistant Attorney General Antonin Scalia and Lynn assistant Calvin Collier.

Brezhnev in meeting with d'Estaing

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, apparently recovering from a cold which forced postponement of an earlier meeting, held intensive talks today with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, then joined him in signing a declaration of friendship.

The Kremlin ceremony came at the end of two negotiating sessions, one of which replaced a meeting Brezhnev called off Wednesday because of a cold.

Before the first of today's meetings in the Kremlin, Brezhnev, according to French newsmen, told Giscard d'Estaing, "I have not been to the office for two days. I caught a cold which began Tuesday and became worse the second day."

SENATOR Barry M. Goldwater, Republican of Arizona, stops to answer newswoman's question last night before a $20-a-plate dinner at the Santa Maria Fairgrounds in honor of Congressman Robert J. Lagomarsino who is on the left.

Goldwater warns audience of U.S. welfare state

By JOHN J. O'TOOLE
News editor

Senator Barry M. Goldwater warned in a gloomy Santa Maria speech last night that America would not make it through a third century unless the country stopped its dangerous drift into a welfare state.

"Ladies and gentlemen, it's later than you think," the Republican senator from Arizona told 525 people who paid $20 each to attend the fund-raising dinner honoring Republican Congressman Robert J. Lagomarsino.

"I have grave doubts we will go through a third century if we don't start changing what the federal government is doing in Washington," said the 66-year-old senator.

"We have one in seven people in this country on food stamps — that will cost this country $8½ billion this year, and there is a bill in the hopper for clothing stamps and another one for guaranteed rent."

"The federal deficit this year will be $90 billion and two more years like that, this country will be bankrupt," the senator told an appreciative audience. "This government, more and more in debt, is fast going down the path and trail of the welfare state and every nation that has gone the way of the welfare state has ended up in dictatorship."

"Just look at England. If anyone had told me when I was young that England would be going bankrupt, England the ruler of the world, now a little island sitting in nothing," he said.

The senator blamed the country's problems on the "heavy hand" of Washington bureaucrats who are no longer under the control of Congress and on men like Senators Alan Cranston, John Tunney and Edward Kennedy who are pushing the nation down welfare state trails.

Even big business caught Senator Goldwater's wrath. Rather than resisting the drift to socialism, big corporations were "getting in bed" with the bureaucrats and were being protected by Washington, he said.

Encouraging the profit system and discouraging the failure to work were needed to solve the country's problems, the senator added. "There is nothing wrong with this country that a little hard work, and devotion to family, God, and country wouldn't cure up and cure up in a hurry."

Talking to newsmen before his speech, Senator Goldwater made the following points:

— President Ford should stay in the White House and work on the nation's problems and not travel around the country where too many "damn fools" were running around wanting to get on the front page.

— The federal government should not help New York City avoid bankruptcy because if that city could be fiscally irresponsible, then so could Santa Maria and Phoenix.

— Nelson Rockefeller should not be the Republican vice presidential candidate because he was too old, would soon be 70 years old, and the American people didn't want someone 70 as vice president to take over if something happened to the President.

Senator Goldwater was elected in 1952 to his first term in the U.S. Senate and was re-elected in 1958. He relinquished his seat in 1964 to accept the Republican nomination, but was again elected to the Senate in 1968 and again in 1974. He is a retired major general in the U.S. Air Force.

Kissinger departs for Red China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger departed for China today to set the stage for an upcoming Peking visit by President Ford — a visit which could open a new chapter in Sino-American relations.

Kissinger took off from nearby Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland to arrange the trip by Ford, which is expected to begin sometime after Thanksgiving day.

Administration sources said Kissinger, whose secret mission to Peking opened the door for former President Richard M. Nixon's dramatic 1971 flight to China, will lay the groundwork for Sino-American relations conducted not only without Nixon but minus Chinese Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, 82, and Premier Chou En-lai, 77.

Kissinger, according to the sources, will explore for Ford a new set of conditions for even better relations between the massive Communist country and the United States.

No spectacular announcements or decisions are expected from the Sunday-through-Thursday Kissinger visit, which will come in a stable atmosphere fostered by better trade, cultural and other ties between the United States and China.

The activities of the aging Mao and Chou have been hindered lately.

The two Chinese leaders, bedeviled by age and illness respectively, may not be able to meet Kissinger. On Kissinger's last visit, 11 months ago, he did not see Mao and spent only 30 minutes chatting, mainly on nonstate matters, with Chou in a hospital where the latter was being treated for the heart ailment.

Chou's condition has reportedly so worsened that it kept him away from that most halcyon of Peking fetes, the Sept. 30 celebration of the Communist takeover of China in 1949.

Kissinger, according to the sources, will explore for Ford a set of conditions different — other than the new faces at the helm — from those that faced Nixon in 1971.

Then, no two nations were feuding as were China and its fellow Communist power, the Soviet Union. One of Kissinger's purposes now is to determine just

Industry quickens output

United Press International

The nation's industries have quickened production at the fastest pace in almost 11 years and "Help Wanted" signs are popping out, according to reports from government and industry.

The four auto makers said more than 4,600 workers will be hired next week to meet overtime demand for hot-selling mid-sized cars, vans and luxury sedans.

The industry has not worked as much overtime since the start of the Arab oil embargo in late 1973 that touched off the worst economic recession since the 1930s.

The news from Detroit Thursday was followed by federal government reports that jobless benefits declined for the third straight week and industrial production increased 1.9 per cent in August.

The Federal Reserve Board said it was the biggest one-month increase in the physical output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities since a 2.8 per cent gain in November, 1964, after an auto workers' strike ended.

The Labor Department said 5.4 million persons were receiving jobless benefits in the week ending Sept. 27, the lowest number in nine months.

General Motors chairman Thomas Murphy said sales of 1976 cars should increase 21 per cent over 1975 models from now to Dec. 31. Sales should be at an annual rate of 12 million cars compared with 9.5 million in last year's fourth quarter, Murphy said in a speech in Anaheim, Calif.

The surge in auto sales and industrial production means factories and mines will pick up the tempo of rehiring among the three million workers who lost jobs in the past 18 months.

The Federal Reserve said the gains were "substantial and widespread" and included production of consumer goods like autos, household appliances, carpeting, drapery materials and clothing, and industrial materials such as steel, paper, chemicals and textiles.

American to share prize with Danes

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — An American and two Danes were belatedly awarded the Nobel Prize for Physics today for fundamental discoveries they made in the 1950s on the nature of the atomic nucleus.

The Physics award, worth $143,000 will be shared by James Rainwater, 58, of Columbia University in New York and by Danes Aage Bohr, 53, and Ben Mottelson, 49, a one-time American who became a Danish citizen in 1973.

Bohr is the son of Niels Bohr, winner of the 1922 Nobel Physics Prize for his "investigation of the structure of atoms and the radiation emanating from them." The elder Bohr received his award the same year Albert Einstein was awarded the 1921 Physics prize which had been held up for a year.

The Nobel Prize for Chemistry was being announced later today.

In announcing the physics award, the Swedish Academy of Sciences said the three scientists won the prize for their discovery "of the connection between collective motion and particle motion in atomic nuclei and the development of the theory of the structure of atomic nucleus based on this connection."

Bohr is at the Niels Bohr institute in Copenhagen. Mottelson is at Nordita, the Nordic Institute for Technology in Copenhagen and is now on a one-month study visit to China. Rainwater is with the physics department of Columbia University.

Prof. Sten Johansson, a nuclear physicist and a member of the prize-awarding Nobel Committee, said he thought the three received their awards "too late."

"They came up with the idea during the early 50s and they should have gotten the prize much earlier." He said it was a "great fundamental discovery" and the most important since the 1920s.

Rainwater developed the theory that the atomic nucleus is not always spherical but can also be egg shaped.

"This has no immediate practical meaning but is extremely essential to scientists," Johansson said.

He said the theory was refined by the two Danes who proved the theory by experiments.

$785,570 low base bid made for juvenile hall

Supporters of the proposed North County juvenile detention facility felt Thursday the 20-bed facility can now be financed by the county on the strength of a low base bid of $785,570 submitted by a Santa Barbara construction firm.

County Public Works officials in Santa Barbara said the bid opening in Santa Maria found five bidders seeking to construct the facility on a county site on Foster Rd., near the Santa Maria sheriff's substation. The site is in the city of Santa Maria.

Low bidder was J.W. Bailey. Deductive alternates for landscaping and the paving of an exercise area for boys and girls reportedly totaled about $18,800. However, the city of Santa Maria has imposed a condition the landscaping go in before a conditional use permit is issued.

County engineering estimates had cited a possible cost of $859,000 for the building with its high-security features that opponents have likened to a "juvenile Alcatraz."

The county supervisors had budgeted $759,500 for the construction work, and there was a question whether Supervisor

Harrell Fletcher, of Santa Maria, a supporter of the project, could swing three votes on the board to draw funds from the county contingency fund to make up the difference. But the deductive alternates could play a part in financial feasibility of the project, or funding might be shifted from some other north county project which could be delayed, it was felt, to push the juvenile center along this fiscal year.

It has the support of the county's Superior Court judges, the Sheriff's Department, Chief of Police Richard Long of Santa Maria, and others.

County finds funds for lawn

The county has found the money to put in a lawn in a new Vandenberg Village mini park and provide maintenance — thus turning around a dispute that had threatened to leave the new facility a patch of weeds.

County Parks and Recreation director Mike Pahos told the Record yesterday, he would use $2,000 from an open space budget account to install a sprinkler system and a lawn on a dedicated mini park at the corner of Scorpio and Falcon Avenues. The work plus the maintenance will cost more than the $2,000 for the year, but Pahos said the parks and recreation department would use its own manpower to make up the difference. The planting of shrubbery, however, will have to wait, Pahos said.

Money for the work comes from Service District 4 tax funds that also include $29,990 for street lights in the area and $11,880 for street sweeping.

Pahos said the $2,000 had originally been earmarked for parks work elsewhere.

The mini park, measuring .8 of an acre was dedicated to the county in 1972 as an adjunct of a new subdivision of Vandenberg Village Development Co. The company agreed to put in a concrete block wall to screen the park from adjacent homes, but said it would be up to the county to landscape the park and maintain it.

William Ebbert, company official, said parks officials had told him that there was no money to do any landscaping and that the mini park would have to wait in line for its portion of the tax dollars.

Ebbert said it disturbed him to think that his company had gone to all the expense of providing a neighborhood park only to see it deteriorate into a weed patch.

Pahos said the county would install the sprinkler system as soon as the development company installed water mains up to the park site and installed a meter.

Ebbert said it would be about two months before the water main installation could be completed.

SLA papers reveal Hearst involvement

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Symbionese Liberation Army documents say Patricia Hearst's kidnapers were amazed at how quickly and enthusiastically she joined them, including asking to take part in their group sex life, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

She was so cooperative they suspected she was faking to cover up escape plans, but later accepted her as "an inspiration" to the group, one letter said.

Her kidnapers quarreled at first over whether it was correct for revolutionaries to have sex with a "prisoner of war," fearing she might someday claim she was forced to take part.

"But Tania swiftly made clear to us that this could not be the case," and she joined the band's multipartner sex life even before her status changed from hostage to SLA member, the report said.

This was "partly due to her own initiative, but also because of our growing love and respect for her," the document said.

She was told, the document said, that she was "free to function sexually" but would be governed by the group's rule against monogamous relationships, requiring "a commitment to develop a personal relationship with the whole cell ... not just with one or two individuals..."

"Sex was an integral part of cell life," the document said, but the feminist members felt they must "smash the dependencies created by monogamy (sic) personal sexual relationships," and banned members from having sex with only one partner. "There was no structure to follow, no rules, no systemized rotation of partners," the document said.

The Times said it obtained some of the SLA writings found in the San Francisco apartment where William and Emily Harris, Miss Hearst's SLA companions, were captured by the FBI.

They included "what appears to be a portion of a series of answers to questions submitted to the SLA by an unnamed person," the Times said.

Woman marine charged with 'relations'

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI) — A woman Marine officer is being court martialled for allegedly having sex with eight enlisted men, her mother reported, complaining of discrimination because no action is being taken against the men.

Lt. Mary C. Niflis, 23, faces charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman, and disobedience of orders against fraternizing with enlisted personnel, said her mother, Mrs. Eric M. Rickard of Southard, Conn.

Mrs. Rickard wrote to Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Arizona news organizations, protesting that the Marine Corps acted only against her daughter, filing no charges against the eight men.

Lt. Niflis had been stationed at the Yuma Marine Corps Air station since November, 1973.

Attorney Jay W. Jeffcoat confirmed Mrs. Rickard's story, saying he had been hired as her defense attorney when her court martial begins Nov. 12.

Portuguese anti-reds in plea

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Anti-Communists have called on the military government to "act now" to end widespread military mutinies and political unrest in Portugal.

Francisco Sa Carneiro, leader of the Popular Democratic party, also urged the armed forces to "clean out" the Communist-controlled news media in the country.

"Confronted with disorder and insubordination, the people have the right to demand that the government act now," Sa Carneiro said Thursday night.

The head of the left-center, anti-Communist party made his remarks at a pro-government rally of more than 5,000 persons in the northern town of Braga.

Sa Carneiro's call for a crackdown against Communist-backed militants came as the policy-making Revolutionary Council met to discuss the breakdown of authority in the armed forces and increased political violence.

President Francisco Da Costa Gomes, who has tried to walk a thin line between Communist calls for a Soviet-style state and anti-Communist demands for a Western-style democracy, accused the far left of sowing dissent.

Prime Minister Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo has warned that the growing military unrest in Portugal may bring down his Socialist-dominated coalition cabinet.

Wallace not sure Pope will receive

ROME (UPI) — Alabama Gov. George Wallace says he'd like to meet Pope Paul VI, but he's unsure whether the pontiff wants to see him.

Wallace said he plans to see U.S. Ambassador John Volpe, a former transportation secretary, during his three-day visit to Italy, but he's "not sure yet" about the rest of his schedule.

"I would like to see Pope Paul, but I understand he sees only heads of state," the governor told reporters Thursday during a brief picture-taking session in the foyer of his Rome hotel.

Vatican sources denied the Pope meets with only heads of state but declined to say whether arrangements had been made for a private audience with Wallace.

U.S. to return to policy stimulating home buying

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housing Secretary Carla Hills said today the government has returned to a long-term policy to stimulate home ownership for medium income families.

In a program reminiscent of federal housing plans that began in the Great Depression, Mrs. Hills said the federal government would provide subsidies for families earning between $175 and $215 per week.

Mrs. Hills, who announced the policy change at her first news conference since becoming secretary of Housing and Urban Development eight months ago, said the program to begin early next year will be a major stimulus to the housing industry and will help reduce depression-level unemployment rates among construction workers.

Earlier, Hills said the government will subsidize 5 per cent mortgages for the construction and rehabilitation of single family homes for low and moderate income families.

The medium income program will enable families earning $9,000 to $11,000 per year to buy homes. These families, primarily younger persons, have been shut out of the recent market with home prices soaring near $40,000 and interests rates of 9.5 per cent.

Mrs. Hills said a majority of the people who will be eligible will only be subsidized for a few years but eventually will work out of the subsidy program as their incomes rise.

Although the cost to the government will be a relatively modest $2.64 million over the next two years, Mrs. Hills said it would stimulate about $6.5 billion in new construction.

More importantly, it would quadruple the number of medium income houses on the market. Mrs. Hills said there are only 60,000 houses for sale in the entire country for less than $30,000.

The federal program is designed to create about 250,000 new or substantially renovated houses.

Mrs. Hills said the bulk of the homes eligible for the new government subsidy will be new.

Although builders have contended they can no longer construct a house for less than $35,000 because of high land costs, Mrs. Hills said she was told by the industry that a "no frills" home could be constructed for about $17,000 less.

Mrs. Hills said the money for the 5 per cent mortgage program would come from $264 million already authorized to subsidize the construction of 250,000 new single family homes.

The cost of new homes has been so high that few can be built within the tight guidelines for the government subsidy. The funds will now be used to rehabilitate older homes.

The ceilings on mortgages on the homes are $28,800 in high cost areas for large families and $21,600 for new homes for small families in lower income regions.

The new program will require home buyers receiving the subsidies to make down payments of about $1,500.

Mrs. Hills said the mortgage interest rate will be 5 per cent. In order to qualify, a family's adjusted gross income could be no more than 80 per cent of the median income for the area.

The new program announced by the housing secretary was based on the popular "section 235" home construction plan that former President Richard M. Nixon shut down in January 1973, alleging its cost was too high for the government.

THE BETTER HALF By Barnes

"Stanley won't buy me a fur coat because it would ruin the hide of an irreplaceable animal — his pigskin wallet!"

Suspect involves self in 40 deaths

WALLACE, Idaho (UPI) — Thomas Eugene Creech, on trial for killing two itinerant painters, has claimed involvement in at least 40 deaths in 13 states, mostly in the West and Midwest.

Creech, 25, slouched in the witness chair Thursday and told of carrying out "contracts" to kill and later of participating in ritualistic slayings as member of a mysterious satanic cult.

Creech's testimony came despite arguments by the prosecution that there was no foundation to the defendant's claims.

On several occasions, Creech has led authorities to a dead end in searching for supposed burial sites of his alleged victims. In one instance, he admitted lying to police near Barstow, Calif., about the location of bodies.

The defense provided a list of Creech's "victims," but most were either unidentified or identified by a first name or nickname.

But Creech denied killing Edward Arnold and John Bradford, the two men he actually is accused by authorities of shooting to death along a southern Idaho highway nearly a year ago.

In barely audible testimony, Creech told a packed courtroom of killings that began in 1966 near New Miami, Ohio, where he said he killed a companion after blaming him for causing the death of his girlfriend.

He said other deaths came later in Kentucky, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Wyoming, Montana, Utah, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Creech, a heavily tattooed man whose dark hair is parted down the middle, said he confessed to the killings because he "wanted everyone to know what happened. My story might help others."

Pied Pipers for better life on another planet identified

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Authorities say the son of a Texas Presbyterian minister and a nurse devoted to astrology are the pied pipers of a new religion promising a trip to a better life on another planet.

Marshall Herff Applewhite, 44, and Bonnie Lu Trusdale Nettles, 48, both of Houston, were identified Thursday as the couple previously known as "The Two" who recruited two dozen persons in Oregon for a journey on an unidentified flying object to "a higher life."

The Oregon followers, joined by others from Washington, Texas, California, Colorado, Wisconsin, Arizona and Canada, were last seen in an Illinois state park 45 miles northwest of Chicago.

The disappearance of the Oregon volunteers on the mission triggered a story that has been shrouded in religious mystique for weeks.

Investigators for the Oregon State Police and Lincoln County on the Oregon coast at Newport say the pair is not wanted on any criminal charge. However, it was learned they spent time in jail in Brownsville, Tex., after being arrested in Harlingen, Tex., last fall. Applewhite was arrested for allegedly failing to return a rental car that had been reported stolen, Miss Nettles for alleged misuse of a credit card.

Valley Weavers to meet Monday

Picture slides of weaving, spinning and allied arts will be shown to Valley Spinners and Weavers Monday night in the home of Alice (Mrs. Loren) Jackson, 513 North N Street. These were taken by Jane (Mrs. Richard) Henning this summer while on a bicentennial tour sponsored by the University of California Department of Arts and Letters.

Shown will be textile arts done by Indian weavers in New Mexico and Arizona. The speaker will also tell about Arrowmont Crafts, an Appalachian outlet for mountain crafts in Gatlenberg, Tenn. sponsored by the Arrowmont School.

A social hour and refreshments will conclude the evening's entertainment.

The group is open to all interested persons in the Lompoc, Santa Ynez and Solvang area. Meetings are held on the third Monday night of each month. Bonnie (Mrs. Felix J.) Scheffler may be called at 735-1973 for any further information.

La Purisima plans a Halloween party

A haunted house, an enchanted forest, miniature golf, a white elephant booth and costume parade are features planned for a Halloween party Oct. 25 for students of La Purisima Catholic School. In charge of the fun event are Mrs. Robert Holloway and Esther Kitchen.

Also on the agenda are a dungeon dip and showing of favorite cartoons. Refreshments will include appropriate foods, described as "frank-in-steams in their coffins," scared corn (popcorn) and witches hair (cotton candy.)

The white elephant booth will offer Christmas gifts at prices the children can afford. Although costumes are not required, prizes will be given for the best according to age groups. Hobgoblins and witches are invited to attend the party in the school at Olive Ave. and I Street.

MOW workers slate party

A no-host cocktails, dinner and dancing party is planned for tonight at the Royal Coach Restaurant for all those interested in the local Meals on Wheels project. Especially invited are all workers, volunteers, drivers and those who have given financial assistance. Additional help is always welcomed, either on a scheduled permanent basis or for occasional service when especially needed. Currently there is an urgent need for a new service coordinator to assume duties now held by Rosie McIntosh, whose resignation takes effect Nov. 1.

Tonight's party is an effort to bring all workers together to meet in a social atmosphere. It is a celebration also of the designation of October as a local Meals on Wheels Month by Mayor Art Scott. Cocktail hour has been set from 6-7 p.m. with dinner and dancing to follow.

DEAR ABBY: Our mother and father were going to a business meeting last weekend when my mother got the flu and couldn't go. My father's secretary, who had planned to go with them, decided that since she had a reservation anyway, she would go with my father. She left her husband behind.

They are all good friends, but we all know that she cares about my father. There were lots of people there who know them, and we are sure that my father's being seen with his secretary alone caused a lot of talk.

My brothers and I are very upset that our father would do this to Mom, but none of us is saying anything because it might upset her.

We are 13 and 15. Do you think Dad should have taken his secretary to this affair?

UPSET FAMILY
DEAR UPSET: Since it was a business meeting, and the secretary was going with your parents, anyway, perhaps your father needed her there for business reasons. I'm not sure I know in which way or how much this secretary "cares" about your father — and neither do you, so don't jump to conclusions.

It might have looked better, however, had the secretary's husband gone along. But don't sweat it, kids — it could have been entirely innocent.

DEAR ABBY: My problem all started Friday night when I asked my dad if my friend could stay all night. My father said he could if we went to bed at 10.

I said, "Daddy, I'm 12 years old — almost 13," and then he said something to me, and I said, "What?" instead of "Sir?" and next thing I knew he said, "Now, it's 9:00 bedtime for you!"

Then I called him a "retarded ape," which was a big mistake because just for that he said I couldn't have any overnight company.

Abby, I am going to lose all my friends

A GAME WORKSHOP, part of the parent participation component of the Early Childhood Education Program at Fillmore School attracted the attention of primary students' parents this week as they made math and reading games. Pictured from left are Dianna Randolph, Lois Thompson, Title I Early Childhood Education reading teacher; Arlene Townsend, Connie Robbins, Carl and Rozanna Jack. Supplies were furnished and various games made under supervision of Pam Duke, tri-step math teacher; Winnie Davison, reading specialist; and Lois Thompson. The games can be used at home or in classrooms.

Beg your pardon!

Not named on lists provided the Lompoc Record last week, news of two Art Association members is told today. Original paintings by Roberta Grafton, a 12x24 scenery and a 12x26 work entitled "Signorelli's Outhouse" were among those sold at the recent art auction to benefit the Lompoc Museum. More than $200 was realized from paintings and other art objects contributed by Lompoc Valley Art Association members.

Omitted from the list of winners in the art association's fall show at Lompoc Library was the name of Jane (Mrs. Leonard) Todd whose scratch board of zebras took a third place ribbon in the mixed media class.

Cadette Scouts form special interest groups

Indicative of special interests current with Cadette Girl Scout Troop 157 are a backpacking group led by Randy Coffee, and a cultural challenge group with Anne Trueman and Dawn Jimenez as consultants. Conditioning themselves with backpack hikes of varying lengths, the girls will work toward a long trek at vacation time.

Members of the heritage challenge group are interested in learning where their families originated as well as the history of our local area. As an aid to these studies, the girls will see the film "The Impossible Dream" next Monday night at Lompoc Library. The film tells the story of Juan Bautista de Anza, famous personality of 1887 who traveled over the California Coast from Mexico.

On Oct. 25, the group will travel to Mission San Luis Obispo de Tolosa to talk to

Eagle Auxiliary team escorts state official

The theme was Hawaiian as Lompoc Eagles Auxiliary drill team escorted the honored guest, Doloris Miller of San Diego on her official visit to San Luis Obispo last week. Hawaiian Wedding song was the accompanying music played by Mrs. Penny Parker of Nipomo, pianist of the evening.

As the team formed an aisle, the tune changed to "Tiny Bubbles" and three members of the team blew soap bubbles as the other three waved champagne glasses. Team leaders, Sandi (Mrs. Dale) Lake and Charmayne (Mrs. Dan) Geswein, danced the authentic dance associated with the number.

Also on the team were Waunita Brown, Ceola Milanowski, Sophia Tipper, Juanita Gonzales, Mary Nasto and Elaine Carlson as drill captain.

Edna Wurl, Lompoc Auxiliary "mother" and the San Luis Auxiliary "mother" were escorted by the team who then formed the letter "M."

Team members were gowned in mumus and wore shell leis and flowers in their hair. Each carried a water lily pad complete with blossom.

For initiation of Cecile Tidwell and Patty Lloyd of Lompoc and ten from Santa Maria and San Luis Obispo, Mrs. Carlson served as president, Mrs. Bromser as conductor.

Catholic Daughters

In conjunction with "National Catholic Daughters of America Day," designated by the national board, Court Santa Maria 1079 will sponsor a Day of Recollection this Sunday in St. Mary's Church. It will commence with Mass at 10:30 a.m. and conclude with benediction at 3:30 p.m. Members of Court La Purisima 1267 and their guests are invited to travel from Lompoc to participate.

the pastor and learn about the mission.

Plans for these activities were discussed as members met Monday night in First Presbyterian Church. Elected as troop officers were: Sylvia Lee, treasurer; Linda Gagnon, historian; Patti-Jean Trueman, scribe. Opening ceremony was by Beth Coffee's patrol. Tracy Trimble's patrol served the refreshments and Cynthia Lee's patrol conducted the closing rites.

Girl Scout calendar sales goal was set at 12 for each member.

As their challenge of social dependability, Kim Kroemer, Beth Coffee and Lori Burns will be hostesses for the troop's Halloween party the evening of Oct. 27. Members are also thinking of service projects the troop can accomplish this winter for the community.

CWCC elect Stella Reed as new state historian

Stella Reed, former state treasurer of California Women in Chambers of Commerce, was elected as state historian at the 20th annual convention held this month in Bakersfield. The new president is Lil Quincey of Rocklin.

Attending the event as delegates of Lompoc Chamber of Commerce Women's Division were Norman (Mrs. Kenneth) Stillman, immediate past president, and Charlotte Benton. Other members, Stella Reed and Helen Smith attended as state treasurer and area director. Stella and Norma were guests at the "early bird" reception Thursday night at the Toginni Estate. A civic minded citizen, Toginni is president of the Bakersfield bicentennial committee and the Italian Heritage group. His family home is offered for many civic functions.

Norma was a participant in the convention golf games on the Kern City Golf Course. Entering the convention head-dress fashion show Saturday, she modeled a hat of pampas grass, an original by Louisa (Mrs. Max) Van Ausdal. Both she and Stella modeled the local division's new hostess uniforms to illustrate their entry in the outstanding projects of the year competition. The winner was a newly organized Women's Division in Paso Robles. Their entry, made in conjunction with their Chamber of Commerce, was a handmade quilt which will be used on a float to be entered in parades outside their area as city publicity.

All Lompoc representatives attended convention workshops conducted as a forum panel in a group situation individual by topics. The panel included Foster Barr, ex-director of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D.C., as the chairman. The topic "Equality for Women in Chambers of Commerce" was the topic, as viewed by chamber presidents, chamber executives, and members.

In keeping with the convention theme "International Holiday" meals included a Ville Des Basque luncheon, a Mexican luncheon, an Oriental dinner and Italian reception delicacies.

"Hoopla U.S.A." was theme of the Saturday installation dinner and bicentennial program. Among the past presidents honored that night was Mrs. Russell Erikson of Santa Monica, the former Fern Green.

Lompoc Chamber of Commerce Women's Division will hear reports of the state convention at its Monday noon luncheon in Valley Club. No other program is planned although reports of the division's recent flea market sale will also be given. Shirley (Mrs. Robert C.) Lilley will preside.

Cooking demonstration given for O'Wives Club

By JUDI BOX

Members and guests of the Officers Wives Club enjoyed an inspiring lecture and gourmet cooking demonstration by Hollywood Chef, Vern Lanegrass at their recent luncheon. The visitor prepared four gourmet dishes which he later gave to four lucky ladies as door prizes.

Hostesses for the October luncheon were the ladies of the 3901st SMES, Mrs. Edward Bailey, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Robert Warren. Tables were centered with arrangements made of dried flowers and fabric flowers of red and white bandana print. Wooden spoons were intermingled with the flowers in keeping with the gourmet theme. At each place setting were free samples of spices and a favorite recipe provided from the files of the hostesses.

OWC President Holle Baskett welcomed the following newcomers to Vandenberg: Barbara Green from Wright Patterson AFB, whose husband Maurice is assigned to the 394th SMS; Kathy Benedict from Whiteman AFB, her husband Marc assigned to the 4315th CCTS; Kathy Whitmore from Craig AFB, her husband Paul assigned to the 4392nd; and Natalie Swerdzurski, first assignment, whose husband Joseph has his first assignment to the 1st Strategic Air Division, Vandenberg.

Luncheon guests were Mrs. Blessing and Linda from Chicago, Ill. and Lois Lamb from McKeesport, Pa.

The newly decorated Garden Room at the Officers Club will be the setting for the OWC hall and farewell coffee this month. Al Lester of the Redwood Planter will be guest speaker, his topic "Terrariums and Rock Gardens." The coffee will be at 9:30 a.m. Oct. 23. No reservations are necessary.

Oil painting classes for OWC members will start Oct. 21 at 12:30 in the Arts and Crafts Building. Jane Hilbig may be called at 4-1041 for additional information.

OWC party bridge chairman Susie Miller, would like to see some new faces at party bridge this month. Play is on the third Thursday of the month from 9 a.m.-2:30 p.m. OWC members are encouraged and welcomed.

OWC Tuesday morning bowling league still is in need of subs. Barbara Cassidy 4-2751, may be called.

ANTICIPATING their appearance in a television skit on Camp Fire Girls, Valerie Campbell, Elizabeth Longley and Sandy Herigstad, from left, have started making their costumes for the event. Originally set for early October, the presentation date is now planned for a later date, still to be announced.

AFL-CIO leaders to recommend heavy contributions to UFW

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Three AFL-CIO vice presidents who toured California to observe farm labor election practices say they will recommend the powerful union give "maximum" contributions to help Cesar Chavez and the United Farm Workers.

Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers International Union and spokesman for the three, also sharply criticized the state Agricultural Labor Relations Board for alleged "slack, incompetent" enforcement of the state's new farm labor law.

Hall made his remarks in a report to newsmen of the three-day tour. He conceded that his report might not be viewed as unbiased since the UFW is an AFL-CIO affiliate.

Although the AFL-CIO has donated about $10 million to Chavez' union during the past decade, the UFW is not receiving any money now.

Hall said AFL-CIO President George Meany "realizes you need money going down the stretch" and predicted the union will give Chavez "money, marbles and chalk" needed to win elections. He declined to specify how much the UFW should receive from the parent union.

Hall also said "Many growers are taking advantage of ignorance of the law to sway workers toward the Teamsters or no union." He said the Stockton incident of vigilantes wielding shotguns to keep out union organizers rivaled any militant action he had seen along the wharfs or on any part of the nation.

"They haven't pulled that in Mississippi in a long time but they do it in California," he said, adding that "it is almost impossible to obtain a free election" because of grower intimidation.

Nation's weather

United Press International
A Gulf-born tropical depression spun across the Gulf of Mexico early today, kicking up battering waves and soaking portions of the southland with up to 10 inches of rain.

A tornado late Thursday night destroyed a trailer home near Pace, Fla., north of Pensacola, but no one was injured.

Flash flood warnings were posted for Alabama and portions of Louisiana, Mississippi, northwest Florida, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

Storm tides three feet above normal, topped by 10-foot waves, chewed at the 100-mile-long stretch of beaches from Pensacola to Panama City, Fla., where Hurricane Eloise pounded ashore Sept. 23 with 140-mile-an-hour winds.

Heavy rains hit the coastal states even before the major portion of the Gulf depression's center moved inland over New Orleans Thursday evening. The southwest Mississippi town of Bude had more than 10 inches of rain during the day.

SP operation shut down by clerks' strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A strike by the Brotherhood of Railroad clerks shut down Southern Pacific Railway operations in six states today and disrupted Amtrak passenger service.

The walkout Thursday night involved 5,400 clerks, affecting 30,000 employees in California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico.

"If they don't come back quickly, we'll have to go to court," an SP spokesman said.

Company officials termed the walkout "illegal."

The strike threatened operation of commuter lines on the busy run between San Jose and San Francisco that carries 8,500 each work day on 44 trains.

The final Thursday night round trip from San Jose to San Francisco and back did not run but "all the other Thursday night runs went okay," a railway spokesman said.

Amtrak's San Francisco Zephyr from Chicago was tied up at Ogden, Utah, with 100 passengers, and the two Amtrak coast Starlight trains were idled at Oakland, Calif., with about 200 passengers.

An Amtrak spokesman said the passengers were allowed to stay over at a hotel or take other means of transportation.

The Amtrak train from New Orleans to Los Angeles was halted briefly at Yuma, Ariz., but was allowed to go on to Southern California.

An SP official said the walkout also would affect the daily run of about 500 freight trains.

"The freights are ending operations now when they come to spots where crew changes are made," he said. "However, we will take care of perishables by using supervisors or putting them on other lines."

The clerks had signed a contract in July calling for a 41 per cent increase in wages and fringe benefits over three years. The contract also called for a moratorium against strike action.

The union set up picket lines after talks aimed at settling a dispute over personnel practices broke down Thursday afternoon.

"But the contract called for a moratorium against strikes," said SP spokesman Andy Anderson. "There were peaceful, non-striking ways to settle this dispute. For instance, they never considered mediation."

Red Cross, agencies review roles, refugee aid programs

Representative of several agencies which cooperate in helping Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees resettle in their new land met recently at the Santa Barbara County Red Cross chapter house to discuss their roles in the joint government and voluntary aid program.

Red Cross workers from Lompoc, Santa Maria and Santa Barbara heard speakers from Southern California division, federal and local government agencies outline continuing services to the 130,000 refugees, of whom all but 23,000 have now been transferred from four military camps to local communities.

Walter Gagola, Red Cross Director of Service to Military Families, Southern California Division, said focus now has shifted from service to refugees in camps to refugees in the community.

Continuing services of the Red Cross are information and referral service on any problem of refugees. Red Cross through its rapid communication via national headquarters can help local sponsoring agencies, he pointed out.

Representatives of VOLAG, voluntary sponsoring agency, were David Kendrick, of Trinity Lutheran Church, Santa Barbara, chairman of the local group, a coalition of 17 churches in the county, and Mrs. Judy Nybakken, Goleta, of Lutheran Church of America.

Hazardous levels of lead found in canned baby food, FDA says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration says potentially hazardous levels of lead are showing up in canned baby food.

Lead poisoning can cause brain damage and other problems, particularly in children. Lead in canned foods could come from the solder or other metal in the can.

In addition, the agency said it found that "lead levels in some adult canned foods are undesirably high from a long-range public health perspective."

The FDA said it will focus on getting the levels of the poisonous metal in canned baby and infant food curbed and also will seek reductions of lead levels in adult foods frequently eaten by children.

The agency announced the results of a survey it made of 2,900 samples of 41 different foods produced during 1973.

"Of the (canned) baby foods, orange juice had the highest mean lead level. Next in order in the baby foods were apple juice, applesauce, and peaches ... vegetables and beef, and mixed vegetables, had the lowest means."

The FDA said the industry had reported a reduction in lead levels in canned juice since the survey was made and are now about half of what they were during 1973.

Children tend to absorb more lead from food than do adults.

The highest levels of lead among the adult foods tested were found in canned tomatoes. Canned beans, peas and peaches were next in order.

Opposition to Constitution change voiced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The departing Watergate prosecutor's recommendation that the Constitution be changed to spell out when a president may be charged with a crime has drawn sharp opposition.

Even Leon Jaworski — whose decision it was not to indict President Richard M. Nixon in the Watergate cover-up because he feared constitutional repercussions — spoke out against changing the Constitution.

Others opposed to the recommendation by Special Prosecutor Henry S. Ruth Jr. included former Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, and Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., a ranking member of the House Judiciary Committee that voted for Nixon's impeachment.

A spokesman said Ruth accepted responsibility for the proposal in the final Watergate report, but he declined to say who originated the idea. Both Archibald Cox, the original special prosecutor, and Jaworski submitted "a variety of comments" before the report was published, the spokesman said, but he would not elaborate.

Ruth has resigned the office as of today to join the Urban Institute. He will be succeeded by Charles F.C. Ruff, a staff attorney who will handle remaining cases and appeals on a part-time basis.

Film on Manson banned by judge

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Saying he was acting "in the interests of justice," a federal judge has banned from Northern California a film depicting the exploits of the Charles Manson cult until a jury in the Lynette Fromme trial has been sequestered or a verdict is reached.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge Thomas J. MacBride, who viewed the 90-minute documentary "Manson" Thursday, issued the order sought by the Manson follower accused of attempting to assassinate President Ford with a .45-caliber pistol Nov. 4.

Women over 40 to be warned on pills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration plans to tell women over 40 to avoid birth control pills.

The FDA said Thursday it has drafted warning labels for birth control pills which will inform users that sex hormones in the pill can cause birth defects such as stunted limbs and malformed hearts.

About 10 million women in America use the pills. The new warnings, if approved, will tell women who take them they face an increased risk of suffering fatal and nonfatal heart attacks.

Women over 40 years old increase chances of blood clots and related problems such as strokes if they use the pills, the FDA said.

Women who wish to stop taking the pill and become pregnant will be advised to wait at least three months because "studies show there is a possible increased risk of spontaneous abortion in women who become pregnant shortly after discontinuing the pill."

The label would also advise any woman who misses one period while on the pill to have an immediate test for pregnancy to minimize the risk of damage to the developing child should she continue on the pill. Such damage can occur, the agency said, because sex hormones such as estrogen and progestin present in the pills have resulted in some extremely rare "birth defects such as heart malformations and stunted limb development" among women who became pregnant despite the pill but continued taking it unaware of their condition.

The agency said it will circulate the proposed new label among consumer, industry and professional groups for comment and then publish it in the Federal Register. After a 60-day period for comment, a final order will be prepared and may be issued some time next year.

Raises ire

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif., Thursday criticized "Congressional hypocrites" who boast of eliminating tax breaks for ordinary citizens and businesses, while "increasing their own huge tax loophole."

Goldwater said a measure to increase the $3,000-a-year tax exemption congressmen now get is a "back-door pay increase."

YOUR CREDIT UNION HAS ADDED TWO NEW SERVICES

INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNT (IRA) AND SOCIAL SECURITY CHECKS DEPOSITED DIRECTLY INTO YOUR INSURED ACCOUNT

IRA ACCOUNTS

1. What Is An Individual Retirement Account?

The Pension Reform Law of 1974 allows each individual to set aside, in a tax-sheltered account, funds to live on when his or her retirement comes. If you do not have a retirement program where you work, this new law will permit you to set up an account with your credit union, take a tax deduction and help you provide for the future.

2. Who Can Participate In An IRA?

Any person can set up an IRA provided (a) he or she is a wage-earner; (b) he or she is not currently an active participant in another qualified pension plan, government plan, and certain others.

If both husband and wife work, either or both can set up an IRA provided he or she is not already in a pension plan. In a community property state, such as California, where one-half of the spouse's earnings are considered to belong to the other spouse, only the working spouse can set up an IRA account.

3. What Are The Tax Benefits?

(a) Tax Deduction

Under Federal Tax Law, the money you put into an IRA is fully deductible from your gross income. Contributions can be deducted even though you don't itemize deductions.

(b) Tax Deferral on Earnings

The dividends you can earn on your IRA credit union account are not taxed in the current year. Instead, the dividends are added to your contributions and are not taxed until you withdraw them upon your retirement when your tax bracket is generally lower.

Social Security Checks

1. IT'S SAFE!

Your funds are insured to the full legal limit by an agency of the United States Government.

2. IT'S AUTOMATIC!

No fuss, no bother for you. Once you sign up, your Social Security checks will be deposited automatically each month.

3. IT'S CONVENIENT!

You save the time it takes you each month to make deposits to your account. And you can withdraw from your savings in person.

Come in and complete the necessary forms today!!!

While you are here we will gladly answer any questions about the two programs.

Reds' needling drove Tony Perez to the wall — and over it

Easy to predict

By Scott Ostler

Nothing makes a sportswriter sound more authoritative and knowledgeable than a snappy set of football predictions.

A lot of sportswriters would be angry if they knew I was about to let you in on a trade secret, but the truth is this: anybody can predict the outcome of a football season. Just follow a few simple rules, such as:

Accuracy is not important. Who goes back at the end of a season and checks on the accuracy of the pre-season predictions? Nobody. They're all busy reading the predictions for the upcoming season.

(Gamblers might check on the reliability of predictions, except for the little-known fact that nobody really gambles on sports. That's just an excuse they use so the wife doesn't know they're spending all that money at the corner tavern.)

Establish credibility. In other words, act like you know what you're talking about. Use phrases like "insiders agree" and "the feeling among team members is" and "the coach secretly believes..."

Use football language. Sprinkle in words like gridiron, signalcaller, mentor, campaign. Racetrack terms are always appropriate: dark horse, inside track, stretch run, work horse.

Don't equivocate. Never say might, maybe, or potentially. A defensive line is "the best line west of the Mississippi." An offensive line is "impenetrable." Weaknesses are "glaring." A running back is "unstoppable." Phrases like "uncanny knack" give a feeling of invincibility to a team, player, or coach.

Be different. To avoid being lost in the jungle of predictions, go out on a limb. Pick the obvious dog to win, or predict the obvious favorite to fall on its face. Predict key upsets, internal dissention, and plane crashes.

Here's how I see this year's Northern League race:

1. Cabrillo. So far has the best-balanced attack west of Lake Cachuma. Insiders agree that the Conqs have no glaring weakness.
2. Santa Maria. Defense is impenetrable. But a glaring weakness in passing will hurt. Their attack depends too much on one person — tailback Rick Johnson. He must stay healthy and be a work horse all season.
3. Lompoc. With a new mentor, and a Jeckyl-Hyde pre-season, the Braves are an unknown factor. They have, in the past, shown an uncanny knack for winning by small margins, but winning. If they can break out of the gate early, they'll be tough in the stretch run, considering their track record.
4. Righetti. Insiders agree that the Warriors still haven't overcome their inability to win the big ones. Never beat Santa Maria or Cabrillo, for instance.
5. Arroyo Grande. They have a press box that is impenetrable. Their defensive line, however, is a different story.
6. San Luis Obispo. This team is a dark horse. If everything falls into place, they could switch places with Arroyo Grande.

Another note for would-be football predictors: prepare to be scratched off the Christmas list of any coach whose team you predict to finish first, last, or anywhere in between.

Pick 'em to win, you're putting too much pressure on 'em. Pick 'em not to win and you're insulting their pride.

Some coaches feel that nothing sparks their team like being rated an underdog, and if the Braves win the title this year I will gladly, if modestly, accept my share of the credit.

A word about the Northern League schedule:

Lousy. Four teams will visit Huyck Stadium this season: Arroyo Grande, San Luis, Arroyo Grande and San Luis.

Lompoc Valley fans pay thousands of dollars every year to watch football. They deserve a better variety of visitors. They are being shortchanged.

It would be simple to arrange the schedule so that each of the four non-Valley teams play at Huyck Stadium each year.

BOSTON (UPI) — The tedium and monotony of a 162-game season has a narcotic affect on ballplayers sometimes. It deadens the personal pain of hurting, traveling and losing and dulls most of their daily experiences so that one becomes a repetition of the other.

To alleviate some of this pain, to inject some form of novelty into their routine existence, big league ballplayers agitate each other in a way only they, and not most fans, can appreciate and understand.

That's what the Cincinnati Reds were doing to Tony Perez before the fifth game of the World Series with the Boston Red Sox at Riverfront Stadium in Cincinnati Thursday night.

Perez was in one of those awful slumps. He had gone to bat 14 times in the first four games with the Red Sox and hadn't come up with anything resembling a base hit.

Ted Kluszewski, the Reds' batting coach, had been working with him. Kluszewski noticed where the big Cuban first baseman was pulling his head off the ball. Perez had been getting jammed with inside pitches and trying to compensate for that, he was pulling his body away. That, in turn, slowed down his bat.

What he needed now perhaps was some sympathy for the tough luck he was having, but he wasn't getting any Thursday night. All he was getting was agitation.

Noticing Perez around the batting cage, the huge, 260-pound Kluszewski, who is built like a brick house, hit him with one of his oak-like elbows. Purposely.

Instinctively, Perez drew back his right hand, balling it up into a fist.

Kluszewski looked at Perez, who wasn't actually angry anyway, and laughed at him.

"I don't have a thing to worry about," he said. "The way you've been swinging, you couldn't hit nothing anyway."

Now the Reds went back into the clubhouse.

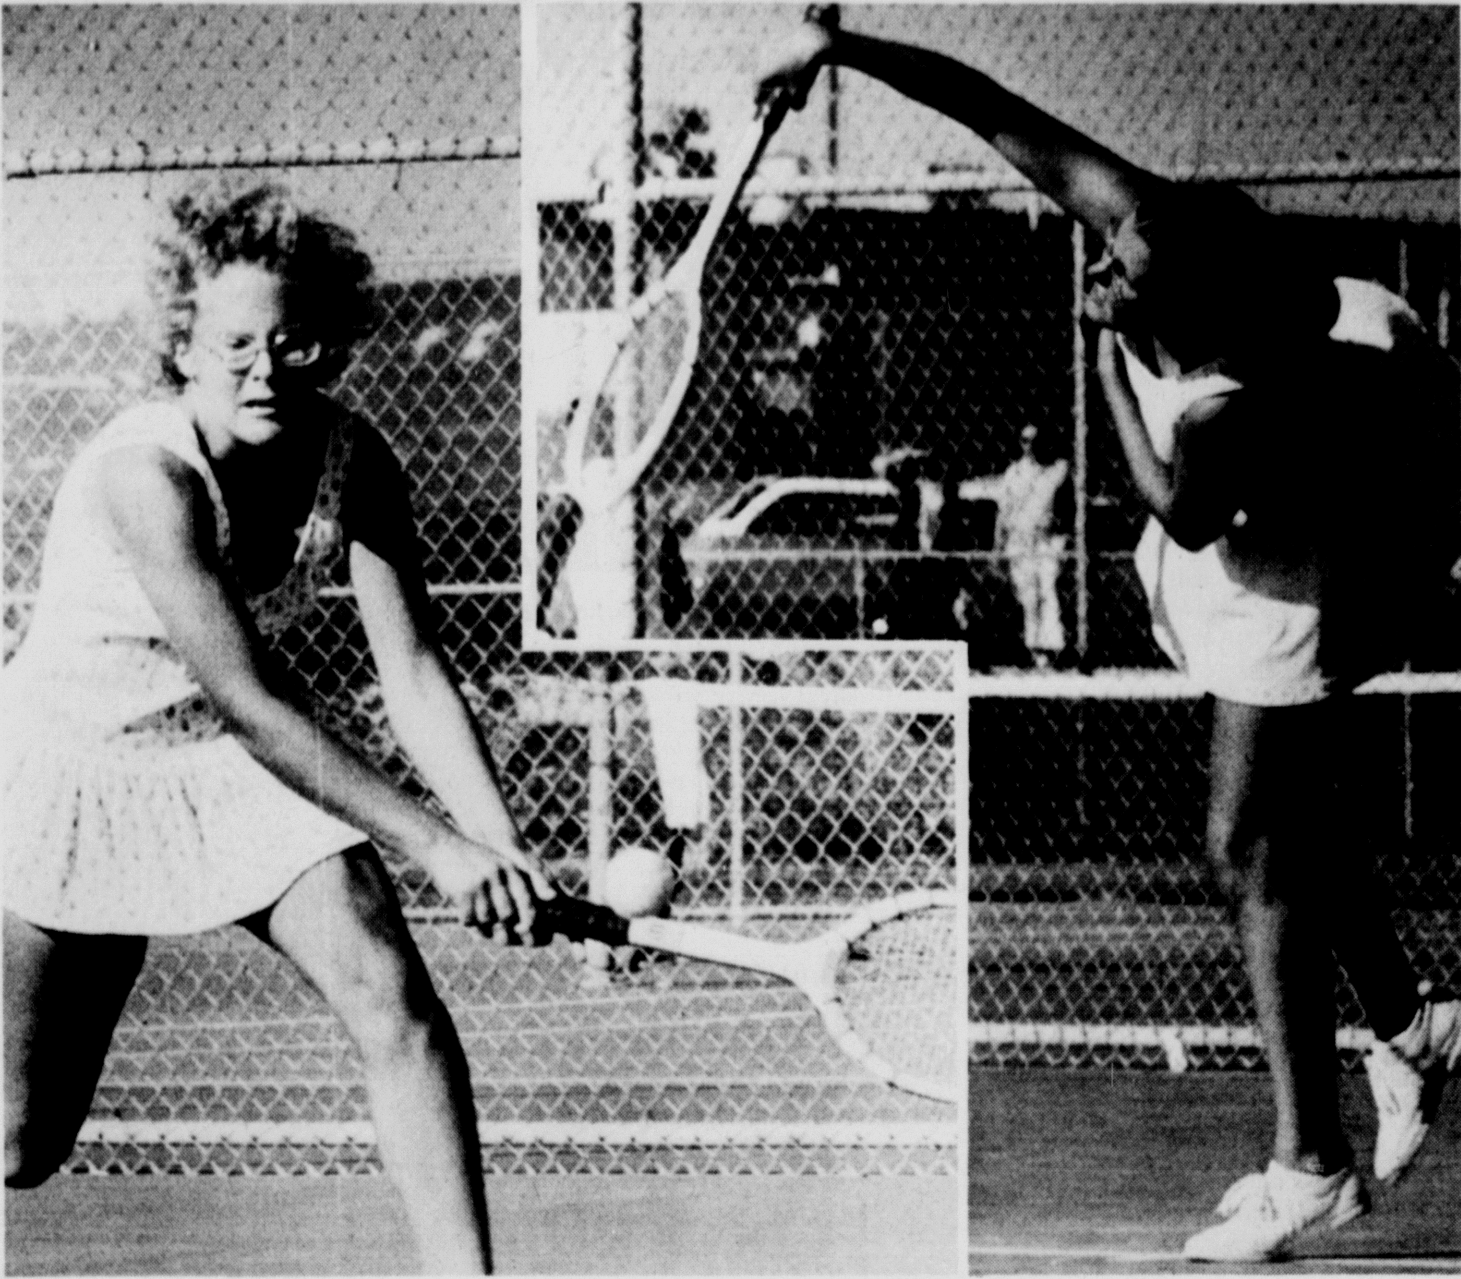

Tony Perez headed for the players' lounge, hoping to relax a few minutes.

Sparky Anderson came in.

The Reds' manager has the same approach Buster Keaton used to employ in all his movies. Sparky Anderson likes to do things dead-pan.

"Doggie," he said, addressing Tony Perez. "Do yourself a favor. Don't get a hit for the rest of the World Series. That would be a helluva thing, don't you think? You know those two little boys of yours, Victor and Eduardo, if you don't get a hit they can tell their kids some day Grandpa set a World Series record nobody else ever touched. Whadd'ya say, Doggie? You gonna do it?"

The nickname "Doggie" originally was hung on Perez by Pete Rose because Rose felt he was like some big dog who kicks, bites and scratches. Now Perez was scratching his head over Anderson's suggestion.

A VARIETY of shots was on exhibit yesterday in the Cabrillo-Lompoc tennis match. Left, Lompoc's Heidi Hedlund hits a two-hand backhand and, right, Cabrillo's Carolyn Norris smashes a serve. Norris won as the Conqs scored a shutout 7-0 win to run their perfect season record to 7-0. (story next page).

Coaches worried, not oddsmakers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The coaches of the major powers love this kind of week.

The opposition is just good enough they can spend the entire week moaning and groaning. But, they know the opposition is of a caliber to be ground into oblivion.

Top-ranked Ohio State meets Wisconsin; Oklahoma plays Kansas State; Southern California goes against Oregon; Texas A&M plays with TCU, etc.

The coaches gloomily warn: "Their record is deceiving. They're the best 1-4 team in the country."

They really say things like that.

A case can be made for Wisconsin giving the Buckeyes a tough game in Columbus Saturday. The Badgers have a great running back in Billy Marek and were tabbed as challengers for the Big Ten crown during the preseason.

But instead of coming into the game this year with a few upset victories under their belt as in last year, the Badgers have been tagged with a few losses.

And, when things looked so promising last year with the red-hot Badgers meeting the Buckeyes in Madison, what was the final score? 52-7.

Guess who's the 25-point favorite this week?

Oklahoma fans have been upset by the Sooners' inability to bury foes under their usual mountain of points. Things have gone so sour bookies are only giving 27 points for Oklahoma.

Southern California chances against Oregon are slightly better—28 points.

But Michigan against Northwestern is a different story. The Wildcats are tied for the Big Ten lead with a 2-0 conference record.

Speaking in context of the conference, Michigan coach Bo Schembechler said, "They may be the most prolific team in offense."

But Michigan is a 27-point favorite.

Texas A&M, however, grabs the honors as heavy favorite with a 29-point spread over TCU.

Other major contests Saturday seen as rollovers have Penn State by 15 over Syracuse, Florida 23 over Florida State and Alabama by 20 over Tennessee.

There are a few contests which could be competitive.

Eighth-ranked Texas meets Arkansas in a crucial Southwest Conference game.

Fourth-ranked Nebraska, with an impressive 5-0 record at home, plays its first road game against Oklahoma State in one of two vital Big Eight contests. No. 10 Missouri and No. 11 Colorado meet in the other.

Other major games have Arizona State against Colorado State, Arizona against Texas Tech, Notre Dame against Air Force, Pittsburgh against Army, San Diego State against New Mexico State and Miami of Ohio against Ohio University.

Pan Am snafus multiply

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — In quick succession Thursday at the Pan American games:

—An official of the International Track and Field Federation admitted those in charge of the men's discus had erred Wednesday in allowing two Cubans to throw their personal disc. He said there was nothing he could do and the results would stand.

—Those in charge of medal presentation ceremonies confused the winner (Chandra Cheesborough) and the second place finisher (Pamela Jiles) and awarded the medals to the wrong girls. Moments later Miss Jiles, edged in a photo finish, held back tears as she gave the gold medal to Miss Cheesborough.

—As Tom Woods was making his third try at 7-4½ in the high jump, a band in the upper deck of Olympic Stadium began to play, announcing a medal presentation. After 15 minutes, Woods cleared the bar to win.

—Clark Scully of Big Island, Va., had been pushed, shoved and spat on while participating in the 20-kilometer walk Wednesday.

"Most of our people are anxious to get out of here and get home," said 400-meter gold medal winner James King of San Diego, Calif.

The Americans vented their frustration on the field, winning eight gold medals—two in track and field, four in weightlifting and two in the equestrian event.

That gave the U.S. 26 gold medals, equal with Cuba, and an overall medal lead of 65 to 50 over the Cubans.

The American basketball team went to 3-0 with an 82-73 win over unbeaten Puerto Rico and the U.S.

baseball club shut out Colombia 6-0 for its second win in two starts.

A comparatively light day is set for today with only 12 gold medals being awarded, three in track and field.

Thursday, after the U.S. protested, a jury of eight officials decided that they would not alter the discus results although Joao DaCosta of Brazil, council for the track federation, admitted the rules had been broken.

John Powell of San Jose, Calif., won; Cuban Julian Morrinson, who had used the illegal disc, was second and Jay Silvester of Orem, Utah, was third.

"A games committee member put the disc into competition," DaCosta said. "But there is no question the disc was the personal one of the Cubans, which makes it against the rules. If there is a guilty one, it has to be a member of the organizing committee. When I give my report, I will say that the event should have been rerun."

Moments later, Miss Cheesborough nipped Miss Jiles in a thrilling 200-meter race. It took several minutes for the judges to determine the winner and as they lined up for the medal presentation the two girls were still not certain who won.

Miss Jiles was told to stand in the winner's spot and given the gold medal.

As the girls walked away, officials realized they had made a terrible mistake.

When they told Miss Jiles, who two days before had won the 100-meter dash, it was all she could do to keep from crying.

Warren worried Tigers no cinch

By SCOTT OSTLER

One of the most important functions of a football coach is to worry.

Take Mike Warren of Lompoc, for instance. Judging by the recent sparkling performances of his Braves, and by the totally dismal showings of the San Luis Obispo Tigers, this last week should have been as relaxing as a vacation in Tahiti for Warren.

The Tigers, who will be in at Huyck Stadium at 8 p.m. tonight for the Northern League opener, have fared poorly against a string of 1-A and 2-A foes. The Tigers haven't scored a TD since beating lowly St. Joseph in the year's first game.

The Braves, meanwhile, have made a complete about-face from their first two games, when they gave away more gifts than Monty Hall.

But like we said, it's Warren's job to worry. A couple nights ago he locked himself into the film room at school and watched movies of the 1972 Lompoc-San Luis game.

Played in a driving rain in San Luis, the game was tied 6-6 late in the fourth quarter, when a San Luis runner broke loose for a long touchdown that won the game 13-6.

"It was a bitter, hard-hitting game," said film reviewer Warren. "Historically, the Lompoc-San Luis games have been tough, hard-fought, physical games."

Lompoc won the '73 game 22-20, and won again last year 21-8, hardly a landslide winning margin for a team bound for the CIF playoffs, semifinal round.

"We've seen films of San Luis' game this year," Warren says. "They kind of scare me. They're sort of a puzzle to me. They look like they have the personnel. I don't know why they haven't put it together."

So basically, Warren has two major worries:

1. San Luis might possibly "put it together" tonight in the league opener.
2. Lompoc just can't afford to lose.

That last worry is due to the fact that the league schedule favors Lompoc early, as they have Arroyo Grande next week, then Righetti. If the Braves are serious about the title, winning those first three games is vital.

One worry Warren claims NOT to have is how to get his team emotionally ready for the game.

"It isn't hard for us to get excited," he says. "We haven't exactly set the world on fire. We are defending league champs, and we'll have something to say about who's going to win it this year."

"We have a proud group of kids. They're getting conscious of the things being said and written, that they are the third best team in the league. We don't believe that."

Texas Open

Caldwell shoots 72

Rex Caldwell, the Lompoc golfer fighting to win enough money to retain his PGA card, shot an opening-round 72 at the Texas Open yesterday, tying him for 53rd place.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Lee Trevino called it a turkey shoot and a putting contest and offered to come in three weeks early next year to help Texas Open officials make the Woodlake Golf Club course tougher to attract more top professionals.

Trevino said because there are no boundary limits in the $125,000 tournament, a player can hit his ball into a

"I don't want that kind of record," he said.

"You don't know what you're saying," Anderson continued applying the needle. "Here you are with a chance at the all-time record and you're turning your back on it."

When the game with the Red Sox started, Perez struck out his first time up in the second inning.

"What did I do wrong?" he asked Kluszewski when he returned to the dugout.

"Nothing," answered the Reds' coach, no longer agitating. "I think you had a good swing. You didn't jerk your head off the ball."

Perez came up again with two out in the fourth, the Reds trailing, 1-0. He lit into a hanging slider served up by Reggie Cleveland and rocketed it over the left field wall for a home run—his first hit in 16 tries.

There went the record.

In the sixth, here was Perez again with two on, and he belted another home run. This time it was a fast ball he hit. The Reds mobbed him when he arrived back at the dugout.

"Okay," was all Kluszewski said.

Sparky Anderson came over to Perez and said to him:

"Doggie, you went and disappointed me. I thought you were gonna go seven games without getting a hit."

Tony Perez looked at his manager.

"Skip," he said. "You crazy!"

Warren then ticks off some more items on his worry list.

"They have a set of hard-running backs and a couple quarterbacks who can throw the ball well. And they stunt like crazy on defense, which can force you into the bad play, which we have pretty much been able to eliminate in our last two games."

The San Luis runners are fullback Rick Rhodes (5-10, 180) and tailback Tim Williams (6-0, 180). The Tigers have used two quarterbacks, but Warren most fears Ken Doss, whom he rates a potentially fine passer.

The Tiger defensive standout is linebacker Scott Heaton (5-10, 175), also an excellent wrestler.

Two injured Braves, offensive tackle Rob Coe and safety Mike Pitts, will dress tonight but probably won't play.

Lompoc stats

(4 pre-league games)

Rushing — Calvin Boler 81-392 (4.8 avg.), Mike Walker 30-113 (3.8), Perry Self 12-73 (6.1).

Passing — Chuck Van Allen 18-45, 230 yards, 1 TD, 3 int.

Receiving — Jerry Tolstad 5 for 98 yards, Bruce Nix 5-57, Boler 4-11, Tito Rodriguez 3-35.

Scoring — 6 points each for Nix, Self, M. Walker, R. Walker and Boler.

Team stats (Braves-opponents) — Rushing: 605-370, passing: 321-223, total yards: 926-593; first downs: 43-27.

C.I.F. NOTES — Santa Barbara High's successful soccer program is paying off in football, too. Pete Guzman, all-CIF in soccer, attempted his first-ever field goal against Righetti last Friday and split the uprights from 45 yards to give the Dons a 10-7 win and drop Righetti from the unbeaten ranks ... Still 34 Southern Section teams unbeaten and untied ... Lots of passing in the Westminster-Fountain Valley game, as FV quarterbacks hit 30 of 52 passes and Westminster thrower hit 13 of 20. Westminster won 28-26 ... Bill Willard of Bell Gardens rushed for 235 yards against Excelsior ... Mark Allen of Norwalk hit 11 of 23 passes for 219 yards, two for TDs, and kicked field goals of 27 and 32 yards, and added two PAT kicks in a 26-24 win over Bellflower ... The Eisenhower defense has shut out its opponents for 15 straight quarters...

Hot Bradshaw cools his critics

Water polo

The Lompoc and Cabrillo water polo teams both remained undefeated by scoring big wins last night in Northern League contests, setting the stage for their big showdown next week concluding the first half of league play.

The Braves defeated the Santa Maria Saints 14-8, improving their record to 4-0. The Saints kept the game close in the first half, but Lompoc opened things up in the third quarter with a 10-4 lead.

Gary McComb, Tom Denton and Tom Hicks scored two goals each to lead the Lompoc scoring.

The Brave JVs won their contest with the Saints 11-8, and the Lompoc frosh-sops made it a clean sweep by winning 13-5.

Cabrillo took its contest with Arroyo Grande, beating the Eagles 12-6 in the Arroyo pool.

For the Conquistadores, Art Courville and Mike Fiote were top scorers with three goals each, and Lloyd Cardone added two. Cardone and Courville also combined to make 12 steals.

Conq coach Bob Boyer cited the defense for shutting off a second half comeback by the Eagles, but felt his team gave up more points than he would like.

The Cabrillo JVs scored a narrow 15-13 overtime win over the Eagles, and the frosh-sops were 10-6 winners.

Cabrillo travels to Visalia today for a 4 p.m. game with Redwood High, and plays Exeter High in Exeter at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

The Brave-Conq showdown will be Thursday night at 7:00 at Cabrillo.

Calloway and Terri Wallace 6-2, 6-1; Lori Klitz and Pam Skogabo (C) d. Karen Deglau and Patricia Beth; Lisa Boyer and Renee Lanan (C) d. Janice Binning and Lauren Mitty 6-2, 6-0.

The Cabrillo JVs shut out Lompoc in their four scheduled matches. All four were doubles contests.

JV match — Cabrillo winners: Greta Nash and Erin Radford, Cheryl Schultz and Pat Brockman, Terri Chapin and Jennifer Nogle, Dawn Yoshitake and Michelle Ward.

Volleyball

The Cabrillo volleyball team stretched its season record to a perfect 7-0 last night with a 15-8, 15-6 win over Righetti.

The game marked the start of the second round of league action. Lompoc drew a bye.

Freshman Beth Gile played a big role in the Conq win, as she served for eight straight points and also passed well. Margie Phipps played her best all-around game of the season and Kelly Banard contributed clutch serves and sets.

Cabrillo plays second-place Santa Ynez (5-1) next Thursday in Santa Ynez.

The Conq JVs (6-1) won yesterday, 15-8, 8-15, 15-3, led by Sharon Barr, Sue Strain, Kathy Midgley and Linda Savinsky.

Ali tops poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Muhammad Ali, winner of the Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year award in 1974, topped the monthly poll for September for his 14th round TKO of Joe Frazier in Manila on Sept. 30.

Ali was closely pressed by football's O.J. Simpson of the Buffalo Bills and Manuel Orantes, the Spanish tennis star.

Mile record scrutinized

LONDON (UPI) — The mile record of 3:49.4 seconds set by New Zealander John Walker in Sweden last August may not be recognized, an International Amateur Athletic Federation spokesman said Thursday.

There is no question that the recorded time was correct but the IAAF will consider whether the 23-year-old New Zealander used a pacemaker for the first two laps, which is forbidden by IAAF rules.

United Press International

The Terry Bradshaw jokes have stopped in Pittsburgh.

Bradshaw, despite his immense physical talent, has never been the favorite of the fans in Pittsburgh, even though he did lead them to the Super Bowl last season. They never let him live down a few bonehead plays in his early years.

Now Bradshaw has silenced his critics. As the Steelers get ready to face the Chicago Bears Sunday, he ranks as the top passer in the AFC. And his statistics should get better against the Bears, who rank last in the NFC in pass defense.

"I've never had so much confidence in myself or my passing and I've never thrown better, either," said Bradshaw, who has hit 47-of-60 passes for 638 yards and five touchdowns with only one interception.

"We've been throwing more to our backs this year, too," he explained. "We didn't do much of that last year but this year we've had to in order to loosen up the defense."

The Steelers, one of the NFL's top rushing teams last season, have gone more to a passing attack this year. They have gained nearly twice as much yardage passing as running.

"It's been a combination of Bradshaw's passing efficiency and the defenses the opposing teams have used against us," Coach Chuck Noll explained. "We've been taking what they've been giving us and they've been giving us the pass."

Pittsburgh is in one of the most hotly contested division races in the NFL, the AFC Central. Cincinnati leads the division with a 4-0 record and Houston and Pittsburgh are just a game behind at 3-1. It could wind up in a three-way tie for first after the weekend since Washington is favored to beat Houston and the Cincinnati-Oakland game was expected to be close.

Washington is 3-1 after downing St. Louis Monday night in a struggle and Houston has picked up where it left off last season when the Oilers surprised everyone with a 7-7 finish. Dan Pastorini has been superb at quarterback and Billy "White Shoes" Johnson has been explosive as a return specialist.

Cincinnati had to struggle to win last week and gets a big break in taking on an Oakland team riddled with injuries. The Raiders were bombed 42-10 by previously winless Kansas City last week to drop to 3-1 and the injuries continued to mount.

Quarterbacks Ken Stabler (knee) and David Humm (hand) are listed as probables, along with wide receiver Fred Biletnikoff, who has missed two games with a knee injury. But running back Marv Hubbard and cornerback Willie Brown are questionable and running back Harold Hart is out.

In other games Sunday, Atlanta is at Los Angeles, Detroit at Minnesota, Baltimore at New England, Cleveland at Denver, Green Bay at Dallas, Kansas City at San Diego, Miami at the New York Jets, New Orleans at San Francisco and Philadelphia at St. Louis. Monday night, the New York Giants are at Buffalo.

Slumping Bulldogs host Glendale

Richard Christie will attempt to reconstruct his forces after last Saturday evening's "fumble festival" in which the Bulldogs were embarrassed by the Moorpark Raiders 38-7, as he leads his team against the Glendale Vacuqueros (3-1) at Dave Boyd Field Saturday night.

The Vacuqueros boast of two running backs who average more than five yards per carry. Tailback Henry Longoria has had games of 134 and 144 yards rushing, and Marcus Manley, a 5-9, 160-pound back is a powerful blocker and runner.

The Vacuqueros, coming off a 1-9 record in 1974, have lost All-American tight-end Jim Galbraith to graduation, but hopes are high for Joe Young, a 6-2, 195-pound sophomore.

The Bulldogs, playing their worst game of the '75 campaign last week, committed nine fumbles, four of which eventually led to Moorpark scores. In the one series in which they had no miscues, Hancock took a Moorpark kick-off and marched 63 yards for a touchdown in the first quarter, capped by Lonnie Eklund dashing in from 17 yards out. Hancock's only interception came in the fourth quarter when Moorpark picked off an errant Alan Shuffield pass and went in from 33 yards out for still another score.

Displeased with the team as a whole, Coach Christie is happy with the running of tailbacks Cliff Wilson and Reddell Windley, as they gathered 49 and 66 yards respectively. Quarterback Eklund completed 4 of 11 passes for 67 yards and scampered for another 22.

Poly vs. LA State

San Luis Obispo — The resiliency of Cal Poly's 1975 football team will be measured by its performance in Saturday's California Collegiate Athletic Association opener against Cal State Los Angeles.

Coach Joe Harper's Mustangs bring a 2-2 record into Mustang Stadium for the 7:30 p.m. kickoff. The Diablos are 0-3-1 after dropping their first conference game to defending champion U.C. Riverside last week, 48-30.

Youth football

Senior Division

Rockets 52, Bugs 6 (Tues.) — Clarence Rollins scored 4 TDs on runs of 56, 24, 43 and 76 yards. Karl Davis also scored 4 TDs, on runs of 32, 10, 35 and 49 yards, and added 3 PATs. Rollins had 1 PAT. Rocket defensive standouts were Richard Gilman, Kenneth Banuelos, Jeffery Brown and Rick Espino. Bug defensive standouts were David Haley, David Weyrick, John Vargas and Joe Velasco. Alray Grossi scored the Bug TD on a short run.

Elks 12, Chem. Kids 6 (Wed.) — Kids scored first on a 65-yard run by Mike O'Rourke, but Elks came back with 2 3rd-quarter TD runs by Clayton Mills (85 and 2 yards). Top Elks were Steven DeLira, Pat Huyck, Eric Larsson, Scott Theis, Russell Fallon, Matthew Midgley and Jim Borchard. Standout Kids were Jeff DeSalle, Joel Flamand, Kenneth Hirzel, Bryan Poe and Robert Radford.

STANDINGS:

Seniors — Elks 3-0, Rockets 3-0, Bugs 2-1, Blazers 0-2, Titans 0-2, Chemical Kids 0-3.

Juniors — Pistons 3-0, Panthers 2-1, Scorpions 2-1, Rangers 1-2, Chargers 1-2, Outlaws 0-3.

Pee Wees — Archers 2-0, Packers 1-1, Lions 1-1, Rebels 0-2.

LITTLE PEOPLE'S PUZZLE

OPINIONS

The Record's aim is to present facts in its news columns and opinions in its editorial columns.

The Sunshine Bill

Sometime after October 20, the U.S. Senate is expected to face head-on the issue of open committee meetings.

A good fight is expected. The Senate Rules Committee, on the recommendation of the Majority Whip Robert Byrd of West Virginia has voted down open meeting provisions in the government Sunshine Bill (S-5), which had unanimously passed the Government Operations Committee.

However, both Democratic and Republican party causes went on record earlier this year for open meetings of Senate committees and House-Senate conferences. Because of this, two senators, Childs of Florida and Roth of Delaware, have announced that they will lead a floor fight against the Rules Committee decision.

The Rules Committee decision just doesn't make sense in light of the fact that 63 of the 100 U.S. Senators are on record one or more times in the past in favor of open meetings. Among them are four senators on the Rules Committee who nevertheless voted with Byrd against the Sunshine Bill's provisions

Commenting on the committee's action, Common Cause Chairman John Gardner said: "A year after Watergate, they still haven't learned their lesson and they still haven't judged the public mood. They don't seem to understand that the public has no intention of going back to the Dark Ages. The public is sick of all the old secret games."

We strongly support the actions of Senators Childs and Roth and sincerely hope that the commitments made by the other senators stay just that — commitments.

Washington Merry-Go-Round by Jack Anderson

Profitable for Senator

WASHINGTON — Sartorially splendid Rep. Tom Bevill, D-Ala., has mastered the art of turning public service to private gain.

The tall, soft-spoken legislator has traveled the world at public expense. He augmented his congressional salary by pocketing much of the money given him for office supplies.

And he's used his staff for personal matters. In addition, Bevill's files reveal that his staffers in Alabama routinely note the race of constituents seeking help. A (B) is placed in the upper right hand corner of an index card if the person happens to be black. Apparently, the Alabama-based staffers had in mind treating the blacks as second-class constituents, but we have learned Bevill's Washington office handles them equally.

A former floor leader for Gov. George Wallace in the Alabama House, Bevill represents the industrial towns at the Northern end of the state. His constituents are largely factory workers, whose average income is $6,350 a year. Bevill himself has pocketed $7,000 in the last two years from his stationery fund. It is all perfectly legal. But most members of Congress use the money for office supplies.

The stationery fund also came in handy when Bevill wanted china and an electric typewriter for his wife, and a pocket calculator for his daughter.

The congressman assured our associate Jack Ciochetti that all of the money taken from the stationery account was declared as personal income on his federal taxes.

Bevill does not have to declare, of course, all of the traveling he's done on Uncle Sam's nickel.

He's junketed to the Soviet Union, Chile, Panama, Hong Kong, Hawaii and Argentina.

The Argentine trip produced a problem for him. It seems that he bought a pony skin coat for his wife at a Buenos Aires antique shop. Two years later, the coat ripped. State Department cables reveal that the brassy Bevill returned the coat to the U.S. embassy in Buenos Aires. An embassy official quick-marched to the shop and got the coat repaired.

Bevill also uses his own staff to handle his personal business. One member of his staff recently put together a scrapbook of his son's basketball exploits. And another routinely handles such matters as paying a local boy for mowing Bevill's lawn in Alabama.

All of this might be overlooked if Bevill was laboring hard on behalf of his constituents. But we found that his traveling and his workouts in the House gym leave little time for his district's problems.

He is absorbed, it seems, in serving himself.

Footnote: Bevill denied that he had an office staffer assembling a scrapbook on his son, and defended his travel as necessary. He first denied that the (B) notation was used at all. When pressed, he said he was not sure what it might mean.

BEDTIME STORY: A confidential

Senate memorandum lashes the pharmaceutical industry for knowingly peddling more than $34 million annually in "worthless" over-the-counter sleep inducers and tranquilizers.

Targets of the staff memo to Chairman Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., of the Senate Small Business Committee include such widely advertised drugs as Compoz, Sominez and Nytol.

The memo, prepared in advance of Nelson Committee hearings on Oct. 29 and 30, suggests the federal government ban false drug ads from the airwaves and other media.

"It is clear from the evidence we have acquired," states the memo, "that millions and millions of dollars are being spent on these worthless products Over $34 million were spent in 1974 on sleeping aids alone."

Government studies show Compoz "was even less effective than a placebo (a 'sugar pill') and that Sominez 'was also ineffective,'" says the memo. Other drugs under the committee's scrutiny include San-Man, Sleep-Eze, Somnicaps and Sure-Sleep.

"In view of the lack of efficacy ... and the possible dangers from some of the ingredients ... it is curious that the Federal Trade Commission has not moved against the advertising of these drugs," said the memorandum.

Footnote: A major danger, the committee's past hearings have shown, is the impact of drug advertising has in encouraging juvenile pill-popping. The Council on Children, Media and Merchandising found that each child in the U.S. is exposed to more than 1,000 televised drug ads a year.

JACKIE'S JOB: Jacqueline Onassis' new $200-a-week editing job at Viking Press has exposed her to a rush of books dealing with the assassination of her late husband, President John Kennedy.

With little understanding of her feelings, the authors apparently felt she would be the editor most likely to give them a break.

Similar books, most of them wild and amateurish, have also been flooding other publishing houses now that the Senate Intelligence Committee is probing the John Kennedy death.

'SAY GOODBYE, AMERICA — WE'RE TAKING YOU WITH US!'

On the right by William F. Buckley

Penn Central-Lockheed myth

I have during the past ten days run into a cliché, uttered triumphantly at a dozen American forums from sea to shining sea, which I undertake, herewith to discredit. In the name of truth, justice, and rational discourse I beseech your help: Go forward and give out the facts to your fellow man.

It goes, in its distilled form, as follows: "Why shouldn't the federal government bail out New York City? It didn't hesitate to bail out Lockheed and Penn Central for the benefit of its stockholders."

1. Re Lockheed, as a matter of fact it did hesitate: the vote in the Senate was only 49-48. The vote in the House was 192-189. Now hear this. The Democrats in the House who voted to "bail out" Lockheed exceeded the Republicans (102 Dems, 90 Reps).

What the government did, under pressure of labor unions who feared unemployment, the Pentagon which feared the dismantling of a vital defense facility, and Lockheed's management, which feared losing its jobs, was to guarantee a 250 million dollar loan. Almost the entire sum was subsequently borrowed; $50 million has already been repaid. The government, so far, has lost not a penny; indeed, it has made $15 million in administrative costs.

In 1967, Lockheed was selling for $74 per share. In July, 1971, before the loan guarantee, the stock was selling for $10. After the vote to guarantee the loan, the stock went down a point. Now it sells at about $8. Economic analysts will explain all of this: the liquidation value of Lockheed would have meant more to the stockholders than shoring up the company by a federally-guaranteed loan. Needless to say, no dividends have been paid. In other words, the federal government did nothing for the stockholders of Lockheed.

2. Penn Central. It filed for bankruptcy on June 21, 1970. Since then, it has lost 1.5 billion dollars on operations for the most part required by government. Penn Central has not paid one penny of interest to the more than 100,000 holders of its bonded indebtedness. In other words, using the New York City analogy, Penn Central was not "bailed out" — it was permitted to default. Its bonds are in default.

The Government has since given the railroad money and guaranteed the principal and interest on a $100 million loan. This datum is meaningless in the current discussion because the principal operations of Penn Central are dictated by the government. The value of the stock was $85 shortly after the merger of February, 1968. Just before it went into receivership, the stock was trading at $13. After it went into receivership, the stock sank to $3. Now it is selling at below $2.

The fact of the matter is that the only reason there is any trading at all in the stock is that there is always the hypothetical possibility of liquidation, in which case the shareholders would own a treasure-land of assets. The notion that Congress stepped in for the purpose of helping stockholders is the kind of economic ignorance on which Democratic oratory thrives.

Let us, however — just for the sake of it — suppose that we were living back in the days of the Great Barbecue, when big business ran the legislature, either by giving Congressmen simple cash bribes, or perks of various kinds. Would that be a reason for federal redemption of New York bonds? In respect of New York City, nobody, really, is interested in the fate of the bondholders who put out money for new York's securities. What they want is for other Americans to subsidize New York City's way of life; and in order to make the case for it, they are willing to talk tantalizingly about Penn Central and Lockheed as though they were examples of commercial favoritism by the federal government for the benefit of the rich. Bah humbug!

AN APOLOGY

In a recent column, I alluded to Senator Lowell Weicker of Connecticut as an ally of those forces in Congress that seek to take over, or otherwise mismanage the oil industry. In fact, Senator Weicker opposes price controls for oil, and is now explicitly dissociated from a position he once took. I apologize to him, and to my readers, for this error.

Yours faithfully,
W.F.B.

Totally frustrated

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Last January, after nearly three decades of schooling, Ray Tricomo began looking with high hopes and wide dreams for a job. He would become a teacher, or perhaps an administrator, there were, after all, so many things to be done in the world. Today, 16 months after sending out the first of 350 work applications, all of which have been rejected, Tricomo's early cheer has turned sour by the realization that despite his education and skills, "Nobody wants me and nobody wants my energies."

It was Tricomo's terrible misfortune to offer himself to the nation on the leading edge of near economic disaster. Even now, labor people estimate, there are 8 to 10 million people seeking jobs that are not available, and official statistics indicate at least 1,584,000 college-educated people are part of this nightmare.

But Tricomo's circumstances have no doubt been affected by another adversity: He's been blind since infancy. His schooling, then, is somewhat presumptuous. A bachelor of arts in education and a master of arts in African history would win employment for almost anyone persistent enough to distribute 350 job applications. But a blind man? Apparently not. Tricomo has been turned down for everything from a superintendency in a small Connecticut school system to a staff instructor slot in — gad — Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. ("I will," he says, "go anywhere to get out of this prison I'm in.")

There are blind teachers in America, a few, but in general the nonsighted are not welcome in academia. Some years ago in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., a teacher was fired after going blind after several years on the job — the reason being, as a school board member charged, a man without eyes "can't find Afghanistan on the map." That teacher sued to win a reversal of such stone age prejudice, but Tricomo says he has no intention of doing the same. In the first place, proving job discrimination, particularly in hard times, is difficult and costly. Besides, Tricomo does not want to work for anyone not wanting him.

He is not, however, taking his forced idleness quietly. Using himself as the example of the multitudes of unemployed in America, he has taken to writing his disgust for the status quo to authorities in Washington. The response was predictable. A Michigan resident (Harper Woods, outside Detroit), Tricomo naturally has contacted Gerald Ford, he says, "without so much as a comma in reply." Of 10 Congress people also written to, only two have bothered to agree things are rotten.

Small wonder then that Ray Tricomo, at 32 years old, highly trained but apparently unnecessary to his nation, has turned philosophically bitter. "Never mind that I'm blind," he says, he can see "this is an age of ugliness and garbage." The government, he says, has decided that full employment is unwise, that six or seven million jobless is actually to be welcomed over the next few years, and so people have been replaced by expediencies, by laissez faire economics, and "by a let-the-people-starve" sentiment.

If the latter opinion is overly harsh, it does hint of truth as well as frustration. Presidential economists say the government can not afford to pay the price of higher employment, so instead it pays $22 billion in tax rebates and an annual rate of $20 billion for unemployment compensation. Spent otherwise, this $42 billion would put five million on salary for a year of public work, but people, as Tricomo says, are not figured into government arithmetic.

So it is that Tricomo, approaching middle age but still being supported by his parents, wonders with agony whether this is a government of, by and for the people, or of, by and for whatever narrow political ideology that happens to be in vogue. For his part, Tricomo has considered leaving "a nation that doesn't want me," but stays on in what he sees as refugee status, still hoping to prove to America that its government attitude that has been wrong about him and those millions like him who are being denied the dignity of employment.

"What we must decide in this nation," he says, "is whether we want jobs and hope for all, or cheap gimmicks for those able to afford them." The answer seems obvious. There are none so blind as those who won't see.

Letter to the editor

Dear Sir:

Speaking on behalf of the motorcycle enthusiasts of the city of Lompoc, we would like to thank the many city officials, citizens and Lompoc businesses, along with representatives of Vandenberg Air Force Base who donated their time and equipment to make it possible for the new motorcycle area in the river bottom park.

The park has been set aside by the city specifically for motorcycle use. Now that we have it, we intend to put it to good use and don't intend to lose it.

The park will be what we, as motorcyclists, make of it so we hope that all cyclists abide the rules, ride carefully at their own risk and have a good time.

Getting into the act

We heard a cute story the other day but we can't use any names.

We have made note in this column and elsewhere in the news over the past month of the wonderful bicentennial project that was completed by members of the Junior Alpha Club — the painting of 20 fireplugs in caricature fashion through the city. The project has elicited much favorable comment from the citizenry.

Our story concerns one of the Junior Alpha Club members who was driving down a neighborhood recently when she spotted a lady with a paintbrush in hand and a can of paint. The woman was stooped near a fireplug and was busily painting.

The Junior Alpha Club member didn't recognize the lady as a member of her club and, furthermore, she knew that the club had completed the project of painting 20 fireplugs. The club had obtained special permission from the city to paint the plugs and had gone through the bureaucratic process in order to obtain that permission. So, the club lady was interested in what the lady was doing and stopped and questioned her.

The lady with the paint brush said she lived very near the fireplug and that she had seen the other "cute fireplugs" all over town and decided that "hers" needed the same type of job.

The Junior Alpha Club member explained that permission was needed from the city in order to paint the plug but that didn't deter the painting lady at all.

"Why?" she asked. "Several of my friends have painted their plugs around town and I just thought I would follow suit."

It's true. There are several "unauthorized" fireplug painting projects completed around town and, we might add, they look mighty good.

We hope that this doesn't prompt our fire chief to get his cackles up and search out the unauthorized fireplug paint jobs.

We further hope that this doesn't prompt everyone with a fireplug near his home to get out the paint brush and become a Michaelangelo. It takes some very special planning to do a good job.

THOUGHTS WHILE SHAVING

It was several months ago that we wrote a column concerning our desire to find a location to put in a patio at our house. If the reader remembers, we had vetoed the idea of a deck because of the costs involved. Well, somebody at Sunset Magazine got a hold of our column and forwarded us one of their publications entitled "How to Build a Deck." Very interesting book but our expertise with a saw and hammer, despite the explicit directions, is nil... Our luck in those World Series wagering efforts at the office is just about the same as last year. We consider all funds a complete donation... Time to clean the garage out again to make way for the winter fireplace wood... There is a lot of talk about splitting our county in two, especially from Supervisor Harrell Fletcher of Santa Maria who appears to be downright serious. The question is not a simple one and it is sincerely hoped that all of the economic factors of such a move will be truthfully brought out before we, the voters, are called upon to put our stamp of approval on the move.
